HOW TO READ THIS REPORT

- Teal means Tamas: charging, taking in, receiving support.
- Coral means Rajas: acting, releasing, delivering.

Houses are the eight parts of your wheel, each with a name such as Creator or Seller.

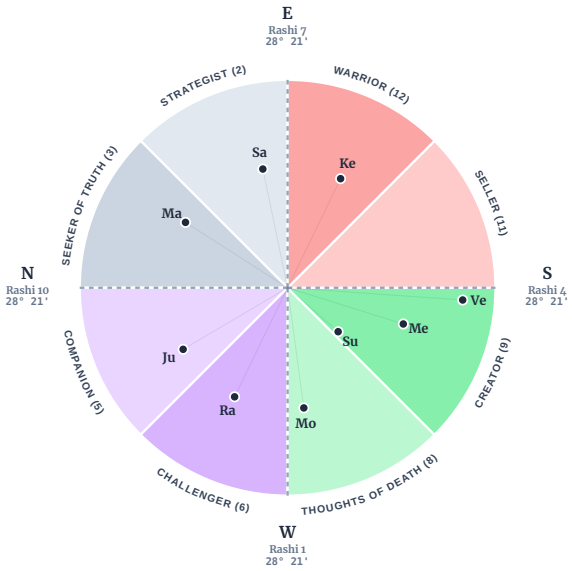

Read in order: each section builds on the one before; the last two turn it into work and timing.

Everything here comes from the date, time and place of birth you gave. Read it slowly, keep what feels true, and use it as a guide for reflection.

SECTION ONE · GEO-TIME ZONE MAP @ BIRTH

01 Your Birth Map

SECTION TWO · YOUR LIFE PATTERN

02 Rhythm of Your Soul

The push and the pause underneath everything you do: what already works, where it trips you, and how to grow.

YOUR PATTERN

The Restless Combatant

You're already moving before you've checked whether this fight is actually yours to fight.

WHAT ALREADY WORKS

You act when others hesitate — you don't freeze when something needs fixing. People call you when things have genuinely collapsed and need someone to take charge, and you can carry difficult decisions quietly and execute them without drama. Pressure makes you clearer, not more confused.

THE PATTERN UNDERNEATH

You don't hesitate when something is wrong — you move, you correct, you confront. That decisiveness is one of your greatest strengths, and in genuinely urgent moments it's exactly what's needed. The cost is that your action instinct sometimes fires before your inner preparation is complete. You win battles — but sometimes battles that didn't need to be fought yet, and the toll of constant combat, even successful combat, builds up in a way that's hard to explain to people who only ever see you winning.

HOW IT SHOWS UP

You can bring full force to situations that actually needed a lighter touch first, acting with intensity before the preparation has had time to sharpen your aim. The result can be over-reaction — winning, but creating unnecessary damage along the way. You may find yourself wondering why you keep ending up in the middle of fights you never planned for.

THE BLIND SPOT

You can become genuinely exhausting to be close to. Your intensity is real, but it can attach itself to the nearest available conflict rather than the one that actually matters — and the people around you can't always tell the difference between the two.

ROOM TO GROW

Asking yourself one question before you act — have I understood this well enough to know what it actually needs from me? — prevents most over-reactions. Waiting one cycle before committing full force usually means the battle gets fought better and resolved faster. You belong in roles that need tough, decisive action under real pressure, not manufactured urgency. Someone who can act decisively and prepare thoughtfully is genuinely rare and hard to replace. When you let the preparation finish first, you don't just fight — you become one of the most effective agents of real change in any room you're in. You end things that actually needed ending.

IN RELATIONSHIP

What the person closest to you needs is a moment where you're not in battle mode. They love your strength, but they also need the version of you that has put the sword down. Ask them how they are, then wait through the whole answer without solving it. That patience is the hardest thing you can do for them — and the most needed.

IF NOTHING CHANGES

Burnout comes from fighting battles that could have been avoided if you'd paused to check your readiness first. Always in combat mode, always hunting the next problem to correct, real rest never quite arrives. Sustained high-intensity output without enough recovery leads to real physical depletion. The people close to you need your presence and your softness — not just your strength and your decisions.

"I do not swing before I see the target. I let the tension show me where the real wall is."

THE SHIFT

Before you move into confrontation, pause for one minute and ask: has this situation actually tested me enough to know it deserves a full response? If the answer isn't a clear yes, wait one cycle. The situation will still need you. You'll handle it better — and you'll walk away with your energy intact instead of spent on a battle that wasn't ready to be won.

YOUR NEXT STEP

Before your next battle, ask yourself: do I understand this well enough to know what it actually needs from me? If the answer isn't a clear yes, wait. The situation will still be there. You'll handle it better.

SECTION THREE · YOUR WORKING STYLE

03 Psycho-Analysis

> How you charge (Tamas) and how you act (Rajas), and how that plays out in your four core rhythms.

In this system, Tamas houses (3, 5, 6, 8) act as energy producers, and Rajas houses (2, 9, 11, 12) are action oriented. The cycle flows from needing support (Tamas) to performing action (Rajas).

TAMAS · ENERGY SOURCE — 4 planets

Emotions created, batteries charging, seeking support.

Moon | Mars | Jupiter | Rahu

RAJAS · ACTION RELEASE — 5 planets

Emotions released, batteries draining, action taking.

Sun | Mercury | Venus | Saturn | Ketu

RAJAS & TAMAS Balanced: The "Rhythm" Energy

FLOW · INPUT ≈ OUTPUT

Honor both the drive to act and the need to rest; alternate wisely between outward action and inward recharge.

YOUR WORKING STYLE

Your chart holds both instincts in close balance, but when the tie has to break, action edges ahead. Across your four core rhythms, the spark of confidence, the pull to build your own structure, the urge to apply your existing skills to a real problem, and the drive to lead and organize others all sit slightly ahead of their quieter counterparts—the caution that checks your footing, the patience to learn before you build, the need to practice and acquire skills before the real test, and the need to be personally cared for. This doesn't mean you're purely a doer; all of those quieter instincts are genuinely present and active in your chart, just a half-step behind. In practice, this means your default tendency, when in doubt, is to take the first step, use what you already know in a live situation, and let reflection or skill refinement catch up afterward rather than before—you'd rather adjust a plan already in motion than perfect one that hasn't started. The four pairs below will show you exactly how close each of these races actually is, life-area by life-area, because "edges ahead" at the whole-chart level can still mean the opposite is true in any one specific pair.

YOUR FOUR CORE RHYTHMS

8 ↔ 2 Caution & Confidence

8TH HOUSE · WAIT Moon

You carry deep doubts and fears about what can go wrong. This doesn't mean you are weak—it means your system is scanning for hidden risks, and realizes it cannot do everything alone; it needs a safe base, trustworthy people, and stable structures around it.

2ND HOUSE · MOVE Saturn

You feel "I can do this" before a detailed plan even exists. This optimism is your baseline battery charge—it gives you the courage to step into new situations even when the path is not fully clear.

REFLECT FIRST, THEN ACT

In this pair, your caution moves quicker than your confidence. The instinct to scan for what could go wrong fires first, and only once that check has settled does the spark of "I can do this" get room to show up—which means your safety-checking isn't holding you back, it's simply doing its job before your courage takes the stage.

Action step: Trust that your risk-scan has done its job once it settles—set yourself a clear moment to stop checking and actually take the step, rather than letting the scan run indefinitely.

3 ↔ 9 Learning & Planning

3RD HOUSE · WAIT Mars

You lean on others for information and expertise. You study, research, and ask questions, building confidence through understanding rather than blind experimentation.

9TH HOUSE · MOVE

Sun Mercury Venus

Your mind starts organizing raw ideas into a method, roadmap, or rulebook that you can follow and teach yourself—built from your own experience.

REFLECT FIRST, THEN ACT

In this pair, your instinct to learn moves quicker than your instinct to build. You absorb information, research, and outside perspective before you start constructing your own version, which means your plans arrive later but tend to stand on more thoroughly checked ground.

Action step: Set a deadline to stop researching and start drafting your own version—give the learning phase a clear endpoint so it turns into your own plan.

12 ↔ 6 Applying Skills & Acquiring Skills

12TH HOUSE · MOVE Ketu

You feel most activated when there is a real problem that needs to be handled. Learning is useful, but it becomes meaningful only when you can put it to work—solve the actual issue, carry the real responsibility, meet the deadline, or produce a visible result. You prefer the real test over endless rehearsal because real-world pressure tells you whether your ability can actually stand on its own. This is where you become self-driven: a live challenge gives your existing skills a direction and turns knowledge into practical competence.

6TH HOUSE · WAIT Rahu

You build confidence by practicing in an environment that resembles the real world without demanding the final result immediately. You are drawn to training, guided practice, mock tests, apprenticeships, internships, drills, courses, and repeated attempts that let you improve safely before the real pressure arrives. Each challenge shows you what capability is still missing, so you keep learning, refining, and adding tools until you feel prepared. This is not avoidance of responsibility—it is the preparation that makes real-world action more skillful and sustainable.

ACT FIRST, THEN REFLECT

In this pair, your urge to apply skills to a live problem moves faster than your urge to practice them in a controlled environment. When a real task appears, you naturally want to step in and use what you already know rather than wait for another course, drill, or rehearsal. Real pressure teaches you quickly because it forces your ability to become practical. The risk is that you may enter the real test before you have practiced enough of the unfamiliar parts.

Action step: Take on real responsibility when it appears, but after each major task identify one part that felt difficult and deliberately rehearse that skill before the next live challenge.

5 ↔ 11 Being Nurtured & Leading

5TH HOUSE · WAIT Jupiter

Emotionally, you seek relationships where you feel loved, special, and nurtured. You heal and grow when someone gives you personal attention, encouragement, and gentle hand-holding.

11TH HOUSE · MOVE No planets here

Once the work becomes familiar, your focus shifts from "How do I do this?" to "How do we do this together?" You start building networks, teams, and systems so results multiply through other people.

STILL GATHERING

Right now, this pair runs almost entirely on seeking personal connection and care, with little active pull toward leading or organizing others yet. You're being nurtured well here, but stepping into leadership in this area may take a deliberate push rather than happening naturally.

Action step: Take one small step into leading or organizing something, even before you feel fully ready—this area is currently running on input with little active output.

SECTION FOUR · HOW YOUR ENERGY FLOWS

04 Life Path Story

> Your energy moves from one planet to the next in a fixed order. This is the story that order tells about you.

YOUR ENERGY FLOW SEQUENCE

12	9	9	8	3	6	5	2	9	12
Ke	Ve	Su	Mo	Ma	Ra	Ju	Sa	Me	Ke

Each circle is the house a planet sits in; teal = Tamas (charging), coral = Rajas (acting).

THE STORY, STEP BY STEP

1. Mercury → Creator action is activating → Ketu
2. Ketu → Warrior action is activating → Venus
3. Venus → Creator action is activating → Sun
4. Sun → Creator action is activating → Moon
5. Moon → Thoughts of Death/Failure is activating → Mars
6. Mars → emotionally Guiding environment is activating → Rahu
7. Rahu → emotionally Challenging environment is activating → Jupiter
8. Jupiter → emotionally Supporting environment is activating → Saturn
9. Saturn → Strategist action is activating → Mercury

SECTION FIVE · YOUR ABILITIES AND THE WORK THAT SUITS THEM

05 Career Guidance

Your four core abilities in the order your energy naturally reaches for them, with the kinds of work each one suits.

IN SUMMARY · YOUR BEST-FIT COMBINATION

Innovation and R&D

Your first two abilities, Creator and Strategist, work best together. You can both dream up the idea and build it properly. Work that suits you most: Product design, engineering innovation, data science, architecture, systems design.

RANK 1 · LEAD WITH THIS

Creator

Seeker of Truth → Creator

SUPPORT Mars → ACTION Mercury Sun Venus

Reasoning and building. You turn loose thoughts into something real and well-made: a plan written down, a system that works, a finished piece of work. This is the ability your energy reaches for first. Work that uses it every day will feel natural and rewarding.

The Creator. This archetype represents the transmutation of mental clutter into tangible reality. It is the dance between the Seeker (who absorbs data) and the Creator (who builds a home for it).

Energy: fast charging. Internal battery charges rapidly, fueling actions with abundance. Rare stamina without burnout. This is your easiest fuel. You can take on long, demanding work in this area and recover quickly, so give it your biggest goals.

WORK THAT SUITS THIS Engineer (civil, mechanical, software) · Architect or interior planner · Researcher or data analyst · Accountant or financial analyst · Writer, editor or technical author · Product developer · Craftsperson, maker or chef · Teacher of maths or science

Sensory channel: Touch/Hand. Releases energy through the hands — building, writing, or crafting with precise, focused movement. Learns best by practicing hands-on: writing it down or working the tool turns an idea into real skill. This is also the channel that develops your IQ — the capacity to reason, structure, and think things through. Method. Stop dissipating energy through words. Channel it into your hands. Write it down, build it, make it real. You are the manufacturer of your own peace.

RANK 2 · YOUR STRONG SUPPORT

Strategist

Thoughts of Death → Strategist

SUPPORT Moon → ACTION Saturn

Imagination and planning. You see the way out before others do: you picture the end result, connect ideas nobody linked before and build a map through uncertainty. Your second ability backs up the first. The best roles for you use both together.

The Strategist. The Strategist is the resilience that rises from chaos. You are the puzzle solver, transforming the fear of failure into a structured plan for survival. You analyze the wreckage to find invisible leverage points.

Energy: fast charging. Internal battery charges rapidly, fueling actions with abundance. Rare stamina without burnout. This is your easiest fuel. You can take on long, demanding work in this area and recover quickly, so give it your biggest goals.

WORK THAT SUITS THIS Business strategist or consultant · Entrepreneur or start-up founder · Product or project manager · Designer (graphic, product, UX) · Investor, trader or risk manager · Urban, event or financial planner · Marketing strategist · Inventor or innovation lead

Sensory channel: Visual. Releases energy by picturing outcomes — seeing the plan or the finished result before acting. Learns best by watching: a diagram or demonstration teaches faster than words alone. This is also the channel that develops your CQ — the capacity to imagine, connect ideas, and make something new. Method. Anchor the 'Start' and visualize the 'End.' Build the bridge between your chaotic present and a secure future. Stop panicking; engineer your escape and survive at any cost.

RANK 3 · GROW INTO THIS

Seller

Companion → Seller

SUPPORT Jupiter → ACTION none

Connection and influence. You read people well and move them with warmth: you comfort, persuade and bring people together around an idea. Available to you, but it takes conscious effort. Use it in parts of your work rather than as the whole job.

The Seller. This path merges the nurturing energy of the Companion with the influential charm of the Seller. You transform from a friend into a 'King of Hearts'—a leader who rules by affection, selling hope, comfort, and ideals.

Energy: forced action. Energy building seeking release. Without direction, power finds way out through impulsive actions. The energy is there but has no natural outlet. Give it one on purpose: a regular practice, a project with a deadline, a role with clear tasks.

WHERE IT HELPS Sales or business development · Counsellor, coach or therapist · Teacher or trainer · Human resources or recruitment · Doctor, nurse or care professional Sensory channel: Auditory. Releases energy through voice and sound — talking things through, persuading, connecting by tone. Learns best by listening: a conversation or story explained aloud sticks longer than reading it. This is also the channel that develops your EQ — reading yourself and others, and turning that into real connection. Method. Focus entirely on the comfort of others. By acting as a bridge and speaking with love, you become a beacon that guides others out of their clutter, thereby organizing your own emotions.

RANK 4 · BUILD IT GENTLY

Warrior

Challenger → Warrior

SUPPORT Rahu → ACTION Ketu

Courage under pressure. You hold steady when things get hard: you act in a crisis, push through resistance and finish what others drop. Your quietest ability. Lean on others for it, and practise it in small, safe steps.

The Warrior. This domain governs high-intensity transformation. It begins with the Challenger and culminates in the Warrior, who executes the necessary change with red-hot discipline.

Energy: slow charging. Spending energy faster than recovery. Draining battery quickly leading to fatigue. You spend here faster than you refill. Work in focused sprints with planned rest, and keep people around you who recharge you.

WHERE IT HELPS Armed forces, police or security · Emergency, surgery or critical care · Sports, fitness or adventure coach · Operations or site manager · Lawyer or litigator

Sensory channel: Movement. Releases energy through full-body movement — action and motion rather than sitting still. Learns best by doing: stepping into the task physically rather than watching or hearing about it. This is also the channel that develops your AQ — the capacity to hold up under pressure and keep going when things get hard. Method. Align your dissatisfaction with action. Stop warring with yourself and direct that intensity outward to correct injustices. Your healing comes from urgency and fearless execution.

The careers above are examples of work that suits each ability, not a fixed list. The Advanced Report ranks twelve work areas from deeper readings of your chart.

SECTION SIX · THE BIG CYCLES AROUND YOU NOW

06 Current Transits

Where the slow-moving planets (Mars, Jupiter and Saturn) are for you now, what came before, and what comes next.

Mars

At birth: Seeker of Truth

BEFORE	NOW	NEXT
Thoughts of Death 18 JUN 26 – 23 AUG 26	Creator 23 AUG 26 – 09 NOV 26	Seller (R) 09 NOV 26 – 16 MAR 27

Mars is triggering action as CREATOR. Stop dissipating energy through words. Channel it into your hands. Write it down, build it, make it real. You are the manufacturer of your own peace.

"When your mind feels like a storm of unorganized thoughts, you are not lost—you are gathering raw materials."

Jupiter

At birth: Companion

BEFORE	NOW	NEXT
Creator (R) 13 JUL 25 – 19 OCT 26	Seller 19 OCT 26 – 07 FEB 27	Creator (R) 07 FEB 27 – 16 JUN 27

Jupiter is triggering action as SELLER. Focus entirely on the comfort of others. By acting as a bridge and speaking with love, you become a beacon that guides others out of their clutter, thereby organizing your own emotions.

"You possess a unique duality—a power to heal yourself by healing those around you."

Saturn

At birth: Strategist

BEFORE	NOW	NEXT
Companion (R) 02 JAN 23 – 17 APR 26	Challenger (R) 17 APR 26 – 15 JUL 29	Thoughts of Death (R) 15 JUL 29 – 31 OCT 29

Saturn is attracting environment to CHALLENGE. Do not shy away from conflict or difficulty. Use the challenge as fuel to ignite your warrior spirit. Stand your ground.

"Growth lives in the friction between who you are and who you must become."

SECTION SEVEN · YOUR EMOTIONAL RHYTHM

07 Monthly & Daily Rhythm

> The Sun sets the theme of each month and the Moon the mood of each few days. These are your rhythms, not transits: use them to plan your weeks.

MONTHLY RHYTHM · THE SUN

Each theme lasts about six weeks. Coral themes are for acting, teal themes for charging up.

Warrior — Now

30 SEPT @ 11:22 PM → 15 NOV @ 4:31 AM

Align your dissatisfaction with action. Stop warring with yourself and direct that intensity outward to correct injustices. Your healing comes from urgency and fearless execution.

Strategist

15 NOV @ 4:31 AM → 29 DEC @ 1:13 PM

Anchor the 'Start' and visualize the 'End.' Build the bridge between your chaotic present and a secure future. Stop panicking; engineer your escape and survive at any cost.

Seeker of Truth

29 DEC @ 1:13 PM → 11 FEB @ 7:05 PM

Observe without judgment. Let the environment reveal its hidden patterns to you before you act. Listen more than you speak.

Companion

11 FEB @ 7:05 PM → 28 MAR @ 5:47 PM

Seek environments that nurture you. Allow yourself to receive support rather than constantly giving it. Connect with your tribe.

Challenger

28 MAR @ 5:47 PM → 13 MAY @ 7:22 PM

Do not shy away from conflict or difficulty. Use the challenge as fuel to ignite your warrior spirit. Stand your ground.

Thoughts of Death

13 MAY @ 7:22 PM → 29 JUN @ 6:51 PM

Embrace the endings. Let go of what no longer serves you to make space for the new creation. Release the old.

Creator

29 JUN @ 6:51 PM → 15 AUG @ 9:04 PM

Stop dissipating energy through words. Channel it into your hands. Write it down, build it, make it real. You are the manufacturer of your own peace.

Seller

15 AUG @ 9:04 PM → 01 OCT @ 5:31 AM

Focus entirely on the comfort of others. By acting as a bridge and speaking with love, you become a beacon that guides others out of their clutter, thereby organizing your own emotions.

Warrior

01 OCT @ 5:31 AM → 15 NOV @ 10:43 AM

Align your dissatisfaction with action. Stop warring with yourself and direct that intensity outward to correct injustices. Your healing comes from urgency and fearless execution.

DAILY RHYTHM · THE MOON

Each mood lasts about two to three days.

Thoughts of Death

27 OCT @ 6:25 PM → 30 OCT @ 8:08 PM

This archetype deals with the deepest fears and the concept of failure as a stepping stone. It is the crucible of profound change.

Creator

30 OCT @ 8:08 PM → 03 NOV @ 12:52 AM

This archetype represents the transmutation of mental clutter into tangible reality. It is the dance between the Seeker (who absorbs data) and the Creator (who builds a home for it).

Seller

Now

03 NOV @ 12:52 AM → 06 NOV @ 10:08 AM

This path merges the nurturing energy of the Companion with the influential charm of the Seller. You transform from a friend into a 'King of Hearts'—a leader who rules by affection, selling hope, comfort, and ideals.

Warrior

06 NOV @ 10:08 AM → 09 NOV @ 11:35 PM

This domain governs high-intensity transformation. It begins with the Challenger and culminates in the Warrior, who executes the necessary change with red-hot discipline.

Strategist

09 NOV @ 11:35 PM → 13 NOV @ 5:19 PM

The Strategist is the resilience that rises from chaos. You are the puzzle solver, transforming the fear of failure into a structured plan for survival. You analyze the wreckage to find invisible leverage points.

Seeker of Truth

13 NOV @ 5:19 PM → 17 NOV @ 12:15 PM

The Seeker represents the gathering of emotional intelligence and data. It is the phase of absorbing truth from the environment to guide future actions.

Companion

17 NOV @ 12:15 PM → 21 NOV @ 12:59 AM

The Companion embodies the need for emotional support and connection. It is the battery charging phase where trust is built.

Challenger

21 NOV @ 12:59 AM → 24 NOV @ 4:45 AM

The Challenger brings necessary friction to test your readiness. It represents the emotional spark that precedes transformation.
